

Using the same materials, shapes and tones in a bathroom project will help to create a harmonious and relaxing space.

A haven in stone

Floating away on a cloud of sheer bliss

Opening the door to this new bathroom is stepping into a world of relaxation. The Apaiser Haven bath, made from superior marble-based stone composite, beckons beneath a floor-to-ceiling window that drinks in natural light. It is the ideal setting to wash away the stresses of the day and refresh.

The bathroom was designed as a natural haven with earth tones forming the colour palette and organic materials used throughout. Travertine flooring leads up to the deep inviting bath, which is raised by a single step as though on a pedestal to be worshipped.

Limestone benchtops and a travertine splashback provide the backdrop for the twin Apaiser Sanctum basins, with their graceful organic curves. Each bowl mirrors the shape of the stretched oval bath — enhanced by the marble composite stone they are made from — bringing continuity and a subsequent sense of pervading calm.

The oval shape of the bath is matched in the two basins that sit atop a double vanity, packed with plenty of drawers.

The perfect mood is created for kicking up the heels without a care in the world, because soaking in an Apaiser bath will give you the feeling of being on cloud nine. Its inclusion in this bathroom has created a retreat to bathe in and enjoy. ●
