KELLY HOPPEN

I'm delighted to be working with a fantastic brand like apaiser and very much looking forward to collaborating with the company. The design aesthetic is similar to my own ethos of clean lines, complementary symmetry and neutral tones, so it was clear that collaborating together would result in perfect harmony. Being an interior and product designer, it's important for me to work with companies that I love and excite me. I adore the craftsmanship involved in creating each sculptural piece and the material used to create an array of bathware for both home and hotels. Made using reclaimed marble, each bathtub has minimal impact on the environment, yet does not compromise on quality, which is a key factor. Being one of the leading bathware designers alongside my signature style, we have created a range that is both beautiful, unique and I am so excited to share it with you all.

Inspiration and Ideation

HARMONY

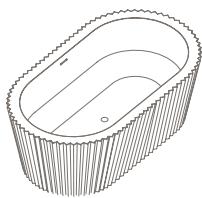

The layering of different textures is a key design aesthetic of mine, so I gathered inspiration from lotus flowers, wooden and ceramic bowls to create this wonderful shape for a sensational piece. I wanted this range to portray purity and strength, which it does with its soft lines and strong outer structure. In the East, bathing is a ceremony and I wanted to ensure that this range was a celebration of the art of bathing.

ORIGAMI

I have always been so inspired by the traditional art of Origami and to be able to portray this gorgeous art form in such a strong fabric was a delight and filled me with inspiration! This range is the epitome of sophistication and discipline. With its minimalistic lines it creates a Zen-like feeling and mesmerising design, which is sure to bring any bathroom to life. As well as being a day-to-day product of function, it doubles as an art piece, which was the original idea behind the creation. I love that it is something different to look at.

BANDE

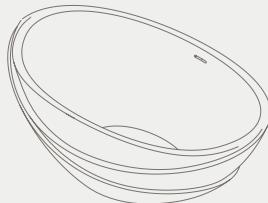

Bande was originally formed from my inspirations of the Obi, a sash used in traditional Japanese dress. I use this in a lot of my product designs and applied this style to the Bande bathware range to create something different and appealing to the eye. The range is both delicate and subtle, with a hint of my famous East meets West trend. For me, the band completes the shape and adds contrast and dimension.
